FRENCH ARMY IN FRANKFORT AROUSES IRE OF CITIZENS

Students Incite Crowds Against Troops Who Maintain Order

REDS DISPERSING

Expected To Mobilise Near Erberfeld For Final Stand

MAYER GETS NOTE

London Press Supports Military Action Taken By France

(French Wireless Service)

Mayence, April 8.—The first day of the occupation of Frankfort (April 6) passed off without the slightest incidents. The population received the French troops almost cordially. Yesterday, however, suddenly, as if acting on a word of command, the town's people began to get restless. Students harangued the crowd from motor-cars, exciting them against the French troops, and scuffles occurred in various parts of the town.

The French troops succeeded in restoring order almost immediately and in the evening complete tranquillity again prevailed in the town.

Aix-la-Chapelle, April 8.—German Government troops are marching on Duesseldorf and the occupation of that town is imminent. The Red forces are dispersing before the Reichswehr but in most cases without giving up arms or ammunition.

It is expected that the Reds, who are concentrated in the country round Erberfeld and Barmen will offer a desperate resistance to any further advance.

MILLERAND REPLIES TO BERLIN'S PROTEST

Paris, April 8.—M. Millerand yesterday handed to Herr Mayer the German Charge d'Affaires, the French note in reply to the German protest against the French occupation.

M. Millerand confines himself in the note to tracing the sequence of events leading up to the French occupation.

The note says: "The German Government violated the terms of the Treaty by sending to the Ruhr more troops than they had the right to send and they also broke their word by not first obtaining the authorisation of the French Government without which they had promised not to reinforce their police forces. The German occupation of the Ruhr was not justified by circumstances. Moreover, demanded as it had been by the military party, it even appeared dangerous on account of its effect on the workers. Lastly the German occupation was a cause of special anxiety to France owing to the fact that the disarmament of Germany has not yet been carried out.

HOSTILITY SEEN IN GERMAN ATTITUDE

"France therefore decided that she must consider Germany's attitude as hostile and, having informed and consulted her Allies, she took steps to guarantee her security. France is not guided by any thought of conquest; she will give up the towns occupied as security, as soon as the German troops have completely evacuated the neutral zone. France only desires to obtain from Germany respect for the latter's undertakings and their execution. She is not actuated by any idea of violence."

In proof of this, M. Millerand, in the note, again repeats his declaration, recently made in the Chamber of Deputies, that he is ready to renew ecohomic relations with Germany.

M. Millerand has submitted the note to the Council of Ambassadors in London.

(Reuter's Service)

Shanghai, April 9.—The version cabled on April 7 by Reuter's Paris correspondent of M. Millerand's note to Germany on the subject of the French occupation of Frankfort, Darmstadt and other German towns, emphasises the following points which were either omitted from or less clearly brought out in the French wireless message issued this morning:

FRANCE BOWED IN DEFERENCE TO ALLIES

M. Millerand's note mentions that the occupation was carried out after the Allies had been notified and consulted. It dwells on the fact that since the operation of the peace treaty, France has frequently abandoned her own stand-

Japanese Control Meeting At Which Sale Of Shanghai Cotton Company Is Ordered

Preliminary Resolution For Disposal Of Concern Hit By New British Order In Council Is Adopted In Face Of Objections

Japanese interests of The Shanghai Cotton Manufacturing Company dominated action taken yesterday at the company's extraordinary general meeting when the preliminary resolution for the winding up and sale of the company was adopted. Final action directing the sale of the concern will be taken at a second extraordinary general meeting that will be held Tuesday, April 27 at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

The transfer of the company's interests and affairs will be the direct outcome of the British Order in Council which provides that control and management of companies operating under British register must be in the hands of British subjects. The Mitsui Bussan Kaisha, a Japanese company in the past has had charge of the affairs of the company.

RECENT COURT SUIT

After the publication of the Order in Council steps were taken to transfer the company to a Japanese holding company in such a manner that the Mitsui Bussan Kaisha might be retained as agent and in charge. This led to an action in the British Supreme Court which recently held that any sale or transfer of the cotton company would have to be bona fide and for cash or, if the company remained under British register, it would have to be directed by a British subject.

Of the company's 40,000 shares 30,022 were represented at the meeting yesterday, 9,107 by proxies. In the absence of Mr. M. Nodira, chairman of the directorate, Mr. John Prentice presided and he set forth the purposes of the meeting as follows:

CHAIRMAN SPEAKS

Gentlemen.—This meeting is for the purpose of considering and if thought fit, passing as an extraordinary resolution the following resolution, that is to say:

"That the company be wound up voluntarily and that Messrs. Norman Thomson and Edward Sheldon Wilkinson, be and they are hereby appointed jointly and severally liquidators for the purpose of such winding up."

Our reasons for proposing the resolution are as follows: This company is a British China Company and under the new order in Council (regarding such companies) published early this year, the agents and general managers must be British subjects. Now, The Mitsui Bussen Kaisha Ltd., (a Japanese Company), have been agents and general managers of the company since its incorporation on December 5, 1908: their management has always been most satisfactory and successful, and we regret exceedingly that if the company is to remain British the agency and general managership would have to be taken from them. We have received a letter from a large majority of the shareholders stating they would oppose any scheme for change of the management, and would rather have the company wound up than have the management changed.

DIRECTORS ACT

Your directors after careful consideration have decided in the best interests of all the shareholders to recommend the voluntary winding up of the company, and to sell for cash as a going concern the whole of its undertaking and business, and distribute the net profits to the shareholders, pro rata, according to the number of shares held by them.

We advise you to accept the resolution and trust it will be carried by the requisite majority.

I shall now move the resolution and after it has been seconded it will be open for discussion.

The opposition, representing British interests at the meeting, was headed by Mr. Horatio Robinson and it was first heard from when Mr. W. J. N. Dyer, announcing the absence of the chairman, Mr. M. Nodira nominated Mr. Prentice as chairman. The motion was seconded by Mr. H. Morris. The objection to this procedure that was voiced by Mr. Robinson and Mr. M. K. Kempton was voted down and Mr. Prentice took the chair.

ISSUE IS RAISED

After the resolution was presented for the appointment of Messrs. Edward S. Wilkinson and Norman Thomson as liquidators the fight centered upon an effort to add a third liquidator in the person of Mr. Eric M. Ross. This was proposed in the form of an amendment by Mr. G. H. Potts and it was seconded by Mr. Robinson. It was apparent that the amendment was lost from a show of hands and when a poll was demanded and taken the result was 6,262 votes for the amendment and 23,605 against it.

Before the original resolution was voted on Mr. F. J. Burrett addressed the chair asking if any tenders for the purchase of the company had been asked for or received and was informed that none had been sought or received. He then asked if any particulars of the company's undertaking had been given to any one and was told that no such action had been taken. In answer to a third question the Chairman said particulars concerning the sale of the company would be prepared before the next meeting.

The original resolution was then voted upon and was adopted by 24,053 against 5,182.

BRITAIN ASKS THAT WORLD CHERISH WAR TIME IDEALS

Sees Triumph Of Evil If Nations Relapse Into Old Antagonisms

APPEAL IS ISSUED

Says League Will Be Just What People Choose It To Be

(Reuter's Service)

London, April 7.—A letter is published in the press today, signed by Viscount Grey, Mr. Lloyd George, Earl Beatty, Mr. Asquith, Lord Robert Cecil, Mr. Clynes and General Sir Hubert Gough, appealing to the peoples of the world not to forget their war-time ideals and sacrifices and pointing out that the League of Nations has created a flood of idealism and self-denial and that the League can only be what the world chooses to make it. The letter makes an appeal for a million pounds for a most extensive educational campaign.

The letter furnishness interesting details of the work of the League of Nations Union. It states that hundreds of meetings in support of the League have already been organised and that 200 branches of the union have been created.

"LEAGUE WOULD WITHER MINUS BRITISH SUPPORT"

Two League of Nations periodicals and many pamphlets and booklets have been published. The Union is now engaged on the publication of educational textbooks and is organising study circles for adults and children. The work is so extensive that it is exceeding the scope of private generosity.

The signatories of the letter declare if the world was allowed to relapse into pre-war antagonisms and ambitions it would be the greatest triumph of evil in all ages. They emphasise that if Great Britain does not support the League with all her might and resources, the League will wither and die.

The appeal is commented on in the press as the most helpful and promising support the cause of the League of Nations has yet received. The fact that the signatories are men of such diverse views is only comparable, the papers say, to the early days of the war when the whole country united for its prosecution.

Jealous Schoolboys Kill Head Of Class

Pueblo, Colorado, March 17.—Tod Kuykendall, aged eleven, died of injuries sustained several days ago, when five older boys set upon him, beat and kicked him. They nicknamed him "Poverty."

He stood at the head of its class, and the other boys were jealous of him.

China's Goat Rambling All Over America

"Holy mackerel!" was the exclamation in a low tone of awe that was voiced yesterday by a visitor to Consul Eli Taylor's department at the American Consulate. He looked up slowly with a dazed air from a record he had been examining.

"Must have got everybody's goat in all China," he continued with an air of conviction.

It was the record of exports to the United States from Shanghai for the first quarter of the year, just issued by Consul Taylor and his staff, that the visitor had been examining. He pointed out an item. It read:

Goat skins $7,083,480

"Seven million in goat skins! Think of it!" the marvelling one murmured. "Didn't know there were that many goats in the whole world."

The full record of exports to the states for the three months runs to the record total of $29,509,309. Gold and besides the big shipments of goat skins, raw silk to the value of $10,543,815 was shipped in the period. This is the biggest item of the report.

One Of These Ladies May Be Next Mistress Of White House

Who will be the next mistress of the White House? This question is puzzling many throughout the world today. In this group of charming ladies may be the next "First Lady of the Land." Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wife of the former Food Administrator; Mrs. Leonard Wood, wife of Major-General Leonard Wood; Mrs. Hiram Johnson, wife of the Senator from California; Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, wife of the Governor of Massachusetts, and Mrs. Frank O. Lowden wife of the Governor of Illinois.

BRITAIN'S NEW MINISTER WILL ARRIVE TODAY

Mr. Alston To Be Welcomed And Given Guard Of Honor By S.V.C.

With a guard of honor from the Shanghai Volunteer Corps drawn up in double lines at the Customs Jetty, Mr. Beilby Francis Alston, new British Minister to Peking, will be welcomed to Shanghai at 9:15 o'clock this morning in a manner befitting his important station. After the exchange of courtesies has taken place between the Minister and the officials here, Mr. Alston will be the guest of honor at a number of social functions that have been planned for his entertainment.

Mr. Alston will come to China on board the British cruiser Hawkins, which will moor at the P. and O. lower buoy. The tender Alexandra is to be placed at the minister's disposal and will bear him and his party to the jetty.

Since his stay at Peking in 1913, when he was charge d'affairs at the British legation there, Mr. Alston has been Minister at Tokio. His departure from Japan was greatly regretted in official circles. In this regard the Japan Advertiser, upon the occasion of his leave-taking, said:

"It was known from the first that his stay in Tokio was temporary; nevertheless Mr. Alston succeeded in impressing his personality on all with whom he came in contact, and it is with sincere regret that the Japanese official world parts with him. He made a host of friends; his relations with the Government, with his colleagues, and with the British community have been of the happiest nature; and he goes to the Legation in Peking fortified with the experience of a successful year in Tokio. It is eminently desirable that diplomatists in Japan and China should have some intimate first-hand acquaintance with both countries. This is now the case with the British representatives at Tokio and Peking, and the public looks forward to useful and successful services from both. Mr. Alston goes to Peking with the knowledge that he has left in Tokio a high reputation and confident hopes for the part he will play in promoting international friendship and in assisting in that great cause, the advancement of China."

$300,000 FIRE BURNS GODOWNS ON EAST SHORE

Bridegroom Is Arrested When Firecracker Ignites Matting Awning

Property valued at $300,000 was sacrificed at Hymen's altar, other worldly goods valued at millions were imperiled, the Whangpoo river was well seasoned with sugar and pepper and a bridegroom went to jail yesterday at Pootung, when four godowns near the Lai Nee Doo wharf were destroyed by fire. Members of the Shanghai Municipal fire department, the Customs fire fighting force, the protective force of Butterfield and Swire, American and British navy landing parties and the Pootung fire brigade sneezed and coughed their way through a pepper scented morass of syrup and checked the flames before any further damage was done.

A wedding was blamed for the conflagration, which, throwing off dense clouds of smoke and great blazes of flame, made a spectacular sight for Shanghai crowds which assembled on the Bund to watch the scene. The burned godowns had been undergoing roof repairs and were covered with matting awnings. A firecracker set off in honor of the bride and groom in a Chinese wedding procession alighted on one of the mats and set it ablaze.

NEKLYWED IS ARRESTED

The bridegroom was promptly taken to the Pootung police station.

The godowns burned were "A," "B," "C" and "D," formerly in the Jardine East group but now occupied by Chinese. Fires at Godowns "C" and "D" were practically extinguished by 7 o'clock last evening and "B" was well under control but it was some time later that "A" was in hand. The sugar which comprised the bulk of the contents of the buildings burned fiercely and the huge banks of pepper set up fumes that were stifling whenever water was turned upon them.

The fire started shortly after noon and a call was sent to the Shanghai Fire Department for assistance at 12:50. Recalling the disasterous fire at Melcher's godown a few years ago, when floating tallow imperiled the shipping in the harbor, Chief M. W. Pett responded promptly to the summons and ordered out the Fire Boat which was on the scene in incredibly short time. The Customs fire boat also responded at once and Butterfield and Swire's fire fighters took a hand, protecting the property of their company and doing their utmost to check the flames in the burning building. The Pootung department was also in evidence.

SAILORS TAKE HAND

Landing parties from the American and British warships in the harbor came to the rescue and gave valuable assistance to the firemen.

The flames started in the mat roof over "A" godown. With a brisk northerly wind the fire soon spread to the other three structures and a perilous situation confronted the fire fighters when they arrived on the scene. Four other godowns in the same group but at the rear were in immediate danger, the property of Butterfield & Swire was

Four Hundred Killed, 1500 Captured In Fight At Habarovsk

TOKIO EXPLAINS

War Office Statement Says Quiet Reigns Now In Vladivostok

NEW PACT SIGNED

Nipponese Accused By Zemstvos Of Wanton Assault On Them

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, April 8.—The War Office announces:

The 14th Japanese division disarmed the revolutionary forces during the night of April 5-6. Six Japanese were killed in street fighting. Fires occurred in various parts of the city.

The Japanese naval base at Habarovsk was attacked by Russian artillery on April 5. After lively fighting the Russians were driven back to the left bank of the Amur. The Japanese casualties were killed five officers and 79 men: wounded six officers and 177 men. The Russians lost 400 killed while 1,500 were taken prisoners. The situation at Habarovsk is chaotic.

Note. Inquiry in local Japanese authoritative quarters failed to elucidate the above. The Japanese 13th division is at Vladivostok. The fourteenth is "somewhere in Siberia." Whether the Japanese military action and the heavy casualties referred to in the War Office communique are two aspects of one and the same incident and whether Habarovsk was the scene of both or either, is unclear."

RUSSIANS BLAMED FOR VLADIVOSTOK FIGHTING

Vladivostok, April 8.—At 9:30 on the evening of April 4 fighting started between the Japanese troops and the Russians and by the morning of April 5 the Japanese were in complete possession of Vladivostok and the surrounding districts.

Japanese flags were placed over the Russian Government buildings, some of which had been damaged by artillery and machine-gun fire. Several members of the Zemstvo Government were arrested. The Russian Army and the Police were disarmed and many were held as prisoners.

A large number of Russian soldiers and the Russian military authorities succeeded in escaping to the hills. The Japanese authorities issued an official statement declaring that the Russians had attacked them and that they were therefore compelled to take action.

On the evening of April 5 the Japanese removed the flags from the buildings and also withdrew their guards. The members of the Zemstvo Government were released.

JAPANESE ACCUSED OF WANTON ATTACKS

The Zemstvo Government has protested to the Allied representatives, accusing the Japanese of wantonly attacking them and asking for an Inter-Allied Commission, to include Japanese and Russian delegates, to be formed to find out who was to blame. The Russian Police were reinstated yesterday and the Zemstvo Government is again in power.

It is reported that similar events took place at Nikolsk and other parts of the Priamur district but so far the reports received have been vague.

Telegraphic communication was restored this afternoon.

The number of casualties during the fighting has not yet been ascertained.

Tokio, April 8.—The War Office issued the following statement today:

"Everything has been quiet in Vladivostok since the evening of April 5. The Japanese Commandant has detained only the leaders of the disarmed forces and of disturbing factions. All property seized with the exception of arms and ammunition has been restored.

her direction from one of the forts. The Hozan Maru moved out of range. Subsequently the British warship wirelessed her to proceed. The Hozan Maru docked safely."

The Kokusai News Agency is informed by the Foreign Office that:

"Japan does not desire to retain troops anywhere in Siberia but at present it is impossible to withdraw as she must await a guarantee of the safety of those who are peaceably established in business there and have considerable interests in the country. Japan must also protect her own property and that of the Allies at Vladivostok and elsewhere. There is no question, but that the Japanese troops will ultimately be withdrawn.

JAPANESE OCCUPY C. E. RY. STATIONS

Tokio, April 7.—The following announcement was issued by the War Office today:

"Notwithstanding the events in Vladivostok on the night of April 4th-5th the representatives of Japan and Russia continued negotiations on the evening of April 5, as pre-arranged and concluded the signing of an agreement as heretofore reported."

The conditions of this agreement give guarantees for the free movement of Japanese, the suppression by the Russians of all harmful propaganda throughout Siberia, the discouragement of everything tending to disturb the neighboring territories of Korea, Manchuria and Mongolia, non-interference with the Japanese Army in the discharge of its duties of protecting the lives property and rights of Japanese and Koreans in Siberia, and the observance of all agreements between the Japanese Government and the Russian officials, whether the former is acting independently or together with the Allied Powers and the Allied Armies.

Japanese troops have occupied stations on the Chinese Eastern Railway where transportation is threatened by guerilla attacks by scattered bands of the Red Army.

imperiled and it seemed likely that the destructions would be wide spread.

The Shanghai department laid its float against Hoong Sung wharf and ran lines of hose in time to extinguish flames that were just beginning to attack "G" godown. This enabled them to save Godowns "E", "F", "G" and "H".

The Butterfield and Swire fireboat, under the direction of Messrs. W. J. E. Forsyth and T. S. Morton, godown superintendents, placed their fire boat on the North side of the conflagration and not only protected the property of their company but also attacked the flames at Godown "A."

CUSTOMS MEN ON JOB

Inspector T. Mellows placed the Customs fire boat at Hoong Sung wharf and devoted first attention to keeping the fire from spreading to great banks of coal that were heaped on the shore.

The alleyway between the two rows of godowns where the fire originated created one of the most difficult features of the situation. The bamboo superstructure for the mat awnings was a menace to the second row of buildings but the Shanghai department laid hose lines that were effective. With these lines and those along the front the department had nearly 4,000 feet of hose laid.

Some of the owners of the stores in the burning buildings are Kien Yuen, Pao Yuen, Shu Tuck-loong, Kwang Yoong, Sung King-mow and Sun Fooh-lee.

Mixed Court Notes

Thirteen was an unlucky number for gamblers in Shanghai this week. Two raids were made in each of which thirteen players were arrested and fined. The cases were heard before British Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Loh yesterday in the Mixed Court.

As a result of a raid at 48 Old China Street, a keeper forfeited bail of $50 and 13 players forfeited bail of $10 each. Another man taken in the raid, who was not a player, paid a fine of $3.

When a raid was made at 551 Peining street 13 gamblers were arrested and when they appeared yesterday were fined $3 each. The keeper was fined $10.

The difference in the penalties exacted was caused by the fact that in the first case the defendants failed to put in an appearance in court while in the latter instance all of the accused were in the dock for trial.

Nine men accused of belonging to a robber band that has been operating in the West Hongkew district appeared in the Mixed Court yesterday for trial. The case was remained for a week at the request of Detective Sub-Inspector Prince who said he desired to make further investigation. The accused men have records of from one to nine previous convictions.

Two men accused in connection with threatening letters received a short time ago by the management of the Flower World were called before the Mixed Court yesterday. One of the men was dismissed and the case of the other was remanded for a special hearing before British Assessor Grant Jones and Magistrate Yui.

French Army In Frankfort Arouses Ire Of Citizens

point in deference to her Allies, but that she was compelled to act when confronted with a violation of an essential stipulation of the treaty particularly affecting France. The note mentions that the Council of London on March 25 expressed the opinion that the French proposal to occupy Frankfort and Darmstadt was inopportune.

The note contends that France acted in the general interest as well as for her own security. It emphasises that France will evacuate the occupied towns whenever the German troops evacuate the neutral zone. It lays stress on France's hope, notwithstanding her present attitude, which is not prompted by hostility, soon to resume normal commercial relations with Germany, on a basis of economic co-operation and agreements, whereby the European situation will be benefited. France indeed invites German overtures in this connection and foreshadows the possibility of French initiative in the matter.

Paris, April 8.—The German Government has requested the Allies to extend until August 10 the period expiring on April 10 within which the German troops must be withdrawn from the neutral zone on the Rhine and the German army reduced to 100,000 men.

LONDON NEWSPAPERS BACK FRENCH ACTION

London, April 8.—The morning papers, commenting on the French advance into Germany, wholeheartedly support the French action which is described as a disciplinary measure to secure the execution of the Treaty.

The Daily Telegraph: "In so far as British opinion is concerned we are convinced that it is nearly unanimous in approving the French action."

The Morning Post: "There should be little fear now of any disastrous developments if the Allies are true to themselves and the treaty."

The Daily Mail: "The coterie, always disposed to scold at France, is entirely negligible. Germany has inexcusably torn up articles 43 and 44 and has not punished the militarists for their recent exploit."

The Times: "The French step is wholly precautionary and when it is no longer necessary it will be discontinued. Our French friends are assured of the fullest and heartiest support of their British comrades in arms."

RED MENACE EXCUSE GIVEN BY GERMANY

Berlin, April 7.—A note has been sent by the German Government to France protesting against the action of the French Army "in the name of justice, reason and humanity." It declares that, had the German Government not intervened quickly in the Ruhr the Red movement would have shaken the German Republic to its foundations.

The German Government scouts the idea that the despatch of troops involves a menace to France and declares it impossible for any Government in Germany to restore order if they meet with unjustified suspicion from their enemies at every step.

A proclamation issued by the German Government in the occupied towns declares that France is a "hard-hearted opponent" and is carrying out a "Shylock policy and is monstrously playing with the world's peace."

The Government promises to do its utmost "to shorten the period of suffering."

London, April 8.—An authoritative military statement, issued today, describes the situation in the Ruhr as still disturbed but states that details of recent happenings are obscure. After relating the circumstances leading up to the French occupation, it refers to the repeated German assertions that the anarchic conditions in the district were threatening the whole of Germany with starvation and economic disaster, failing the immediate restoration of order by troops entering the neutral zone. The statement says that reports from other sources make it doubtful whether the situation is really so serious as the German Government made out. It is understood that the whole question was carefully considered by the Cabinet in London today and that it is most improbable that British troops will take part in the occupation of German centers in the neutral zone.

INSISTS REICHSWEHR DISBAND ON APRIL 10

Berlin, April 7.—The Inter-Allied Military Commission has reminded the German Foreign Office of the necessity of carrying out the undertaking to disband the Reichswehr by April 10, pointing out that the Reichswehr is on a full mobilisation basis and frequently engages in military exercises.

The German Government has issued a communique protesting against the action of the French Government which, the communique states, is not in accordance with the peace treaty or with "the insignificance of the German measures in the Ruhr."

Paris, April 7.—A telegram from Mayence states that the only incident during the French advance was the firing of two shells at a cavalry patrol by a German armored car.

Berlin, April 7.—The Reichswehr troops occupied Essen yesterday evening.

London, April 7.—The French advance beyond the Mainz bridge head is practically complete.

LONG COLUMNS OF REDS SURRENDER THEIR ARMS

Reuter's Berlin correspondent states that besides Frankfort, Darmstadt and Hanau, the towns of Offenbach, Hamburg and Wiesbaden have been occupied without incident, except at one point north of Frankfort, where a German armored car fired on French cavalry, and this is attributed to the action of excited soldiers.

The correspondent describes how long columns of Reds in motor lorries and on foot yesterday passed through Elberfeld, where most of them surrendered their arms.

Other portions of the Red army marched into the occupied territory, chiefly to Solingen, where they were disarmed by the British. Other Reds still armed are wandering in the mountains.

The Reds arrested at Duisburg have been sent for trial by extraordinary court martial at Wesel.

It is stated in Berlin that work has been fully resumed at the Bochum mines, and that the Central Council of the Reds has transferred its headquarters from Essen to Barmen.

Reuter learns from an authoritative French source that there is reason to believe that the Germans will evacuate the neutral zone in a few days, whereupon the French troops will be withdrawn, thus closing an incident which will have served the purpose of conclusively proving to the Germans that the terms of the treaty must be carried out.

London, April 8.—The Conference of Ambassadors met yesterday afternoon at the Foreign Office to discuss various questions bearing on the Turkish Treaty. Lord Curzon presided and the Japanese and Italian Ambassadors were present at the meeting.

CAILLAUX THREAT TO KING ALFONSO

Former Envoy Declares Monarch Menaced With Death During Agadir Incident

ASKS FOR SECRET HEARING

Accused Senator Wants His Evidence Denying This Story Kept Quiet

Paris, March 4.—Today's session of the trial of former Premier Joseph Caillaux before the Senate, sitting as a high court, on the charge of having had treasonable dealings with the enemy, brought out an alleged threat by M. Caillaux against the life of King Alfonso of Spain at the time the landing of German troops at Agadir, Morocco, led to grave international complications in 1911.

William Martin, former French Ambassador to Madrid, and once Chief of Protocol at the Foreign Office, related a conversation he had with King Alfonso on Jan. 30, 1912. The King, according to M. Martin, declared that at the time of the Agadir incident M. Caillaux sent an emissary to him, threatening him with death. M. Martin testified that King Alfonso said he was not afraid of M. Caillaux's threat, but had made a note of it and left a copy in a vault so that if anything happened the truth would be known.

M. Caillaux denied that there was any truth in the story, and asked the court to allow him to produce counterproofs at a private sitting of the court.

It was Ambassadors' day today at the Caillaux trial. Three former French Ambassadors at Madrid, Petrograd and Berlin were the first witnesses for the prosecution. They were William Martin, Maurice Paleologue and Jules Cambon, and their testimonies were as varied as their opinions concerning the accused.

M. Paleologue, after informing the court that he realised he faced a man who was defending his honor, and perhaps his life, and would weigh every word, launched into a scathing arraignment of M. Caillaux. He concluded by dramatically pointing an accusing finger at the prisoner and shouting: "You are the Sturmer of France." (Boris Sturmer, former Russian Premier, with the late Monk Rasputin and former Minister of the Interior Protopopoff, formed the trio known as "The Dark Forces" of Russia, alleged to have treacherously sold out Russia to the Germans through intrigues with the late Empress).

The court was in an uproar, with M. Moro-Giafferi of counsel for Caillaux protesting violently.

CAMBON DEFENDS CAILLAUX

M. Cambon reviewed the Agadir negotiations. He said Caillaux never gave him instructions in any way deviating from the policy followed by other Premiers and Ministers of Foreign Affairs toward Germany. He declared he was convinced that Caillaux acted in the best interests of France and was imbued with patriotism toward the country.

"Caillaux acted in the Agadir negotiations in a manner which does him the greatest honor," M. Cambon said in concluding his testimony: "I told him so then and I am prepared to say so now."

M. Martin reported the conversation which he had with King Alfonso of Spain previous to his departure for Paris in January, 1912, previously referred to.

The court will decide tomorrow whether documents produced by Caillaux in denial of this story shall be disclosed in public session or read at a private sitting of the court.

The public prosecutor, Theodore Lescouve, concluded his cross-examination by asking Caillaux to explain a statement in his essay, entitled "The Responsible Parties," in which he said that former President Poincare at a Council of Ministers on Aug. 1, 1914, asked the Ministers to declare war immediately upon Germany, quoting M. Poincare as saying: "France does not wait until one declares war on her."

Caillaux added in the essay that M. Poincare desired war and wished it an accomplished fact before England made known its decision to join on the side of the Allies, as he felt sure that if Germany were satisfied that England would enter the war, there would be no war.

"Where did you get your information?" asked M. Lescouve.

"From the Ministers of the Viviani Cabinet," replied Caillaux.

"Who are they?" insisted the prosecutor.

"What do you take me for," shouted Caillaux in a paroxysm of rage, "that I should betray the confidence placed in me by my friends. This is not a trial for intelligence with the enemy; this is a trial of one's most intimate thoughts, a trial for heresy. The document 'The Responsible Parties' would never have seen the light of day. You gave it publicity. You laid bare the most intimate thoughts of mine to the public. You produce the proofs."

Last Symbol Of Kaiserism Disappears

All that stood for Kaiserism is fast disappearing in Germany under the present regime. Even the highly prized State eagles have been sacrificed. Only a short while ago, as shown in this photograph, they were taken down from the Reichstag to be later replaced with the symbols of the new republic.

Nitti Warns Europe Of Peril Of Revolt

Calls Suffering Masses In Central And Eastern Countries A General Menace

London, March 4.—Europe is in danger of permanently losing the position she held in the world before the outbreak of the World War, says Premier Nitti of Italy in an interview printed by The Manchester Guardian today. He points out that Europe is no longer a creditor but is on the debit side of the ledger.

Public order in Italy is good, says the Premier, and if that country could get her minimum requirements in coal, foodstuffs and raw materials she would be able to reconstitute herself economically. Alluding to the success of a large number of Socialist Deputies in the last Italian election, Signor Nitti says that although the result may make his work more arduous it will not be disadvantageous to the country, because the present Parliament "is representative of all political currents in Italy, and that is the best safeguard against revolution."

"No attention must be paid to rumors about Bolshevism," he continues. "Hard work and moderation are the slogans of Italy at the present moment."

Only brief allusion to the Adriatic problem is made in the interview.

"We shall find a way out," says the Premier, "and we and the Jugo-Slavs will be friends. Don't magnify this frontier controversy by talking of imperialism. Our persistent demand for the neutralisation of the eastern coast of the Adriatic proves the futility of the allegation of imperialism against Italy. Feeling naturally exists over Fiume, because the future of some Italians is immediately concerned, but these are really questions of statistics and not of wild ambitions.

"What, after all, is Italy demanding in the Adriatic? She wants strips of territory the population of which is less than the Italian casualties in the war. Do not confuse issues by talking of secret treaties. The Pact of London was concealed only because of the necessities of the war, and, at any rate, those who might complain are, after all, the Italian people."

Discussing the European situation in general and the danger of the permanent loss to Europe of her former pre-eminent position, the Premier, after pointing out that Europe had passed from the status of a creditor before the war to a debtor after it, adduces other reasons for his opinion. Alluding to Europe's pre-war status, he says:

"Then she was the most productive region in proportion to her population in the world. Now millions of her producers are unemployed. Germany, which was the focus of European productivity, is paralysed economically; Southeastern Europe and Russia are not only stagnant economically but are in social and political confusion. How can Europe live if half her energies remain suppressed, and how can her energy revive unless the victors and the vanquished realise that they have a common task to accomplish? Think of the danger of putting this huge mass of suffering humanity in movement throughout Central and Eastern Europe.

"Here, indeed, there are possibilities of revolution, possibilities which threaten us all. At all costs the tension must be relaxed. How can the vanquished pay indemnities unless their productivity is restored by allocation of raw materials? It is a great thing that we are not going to suffocate the Turk, but will help him to his feet like any other ruined people."

Premier Nitti expresses strong conviction in favor of restoring normal relations with Russia, adding: "There should be no more meddling with the internal affairs of one country by another."

U-BOATS LOSING ADVANTAGE OVER SURFACE VESSELS

British Navy Officer Expects Use Of Gas To Revolutionise Sea Warfare Methods

(Reuter's Service)

London, April 7.—The waning of the advantage enjoyed by submarines over surface ships was shown in a lecture by Naval Lieutenant W. S. Kinghall at the Royal United Service Institution today. The lecturer asserted that advantage which was 9 to 1 in 1914 was only 7 to 3 last year and the odds are likely to be 6 to 7 against submarines in 1920. Submarine detection apparatus is likely to be developed which will partially protect important ships against tactical attack. Lieut. Kinghall said that in his opinion the use of gas would revolutionise naval warfare as gunpowder did when it was first introduced. Gas might be discharged on the enemy coast-line. Such a plan was contemplated during the German occupation of Belgium, but was adandoned in deference to Belgian susceptibilities. He recommended an extension of convoying for the protection of commerce in wartime and ruled out the plan for making capital ships submersible on the ground of its impracticability. Admiral Sir Doveton Sturdee, who presided at the lecture, said that he was in entire agreement with the lecturer's last point.

'TWO AND THREE'

'Putting The Next One Over' With 'Bugs' Baer

Here's Sir Oliver Lodge fixing it with the angels so's we can chirp with the dead.

If Sir Oliver packs that much influence under the belt, maybe he can fix it with the Bell Telephone so's we can talk with the living.

This might be asking for too much. While Oliver has succeeded in gossiping with spooks, shades and nimble ghosts, his experiments haven't been successful enough to aggravate the belief that Oliver can buzz with anybody over a New York telephone.

However, he chirps that the chasm between the terrestial and the celestial is not real, and can be bridged with the aid of unlimited confidence and a hatful of nickles. The beyond is merely screened from earthly senses, and the science of the future will enable many to reach the point of communication between ourselves and the vague shadows on the numb end of a telephone wire. But even so trifling a thing as a chat with a haloed subscriber hypes us up with the hope that, some day, Oliver may perfect the industry and establish communication between two subjects separated by a mile of telephone wire and three billion miles of service.

Oliver plants his dope on the supposition that the ether is peopled with celestial suburbanites. Ether is a medium which fills all space through which radiant energy may be transmitte by transverse wave motion. If the transverse wave motion does not give you a case of Ouija board seasickness you don't have to take the ether, which is the usual means of grabbing a souse before all telephone calls and other major operations.

Ether is also a medium used by second-hand automobile gypsies, who pack the gas tank with it, thus sustaining communication between a live spark and a dead engine. Mixed with red raisins and wood alcohol, it makes a fine stirrup cup that enables the user to investigate communication with the dead in person.

As Oliver has never been buried alive in a New York telephone booth, nor tried to establish a jitney communication with a Flushing spirit through the medium of an etherised central, we rise to squawk that Oliver's experiments with the worlds beyond are merely in their infancy. In fancy being a period packed with colic, eczema, teething and insomnia. All four of which serve as counter irritants and stimulants while waiting for central to park her chewing gum on the door knob and assume her usual place in the overshadowing telephone crime as a witness for the defense.

While Sir Lodge is no relation to Henry Cabot Lodge, the Senator from Massachusetts, Hank is busy etherising the League of Nations into a condition which will give England's foremost physic traveling salesman more territory to cover with his telepathic samples. If Oliver can establish communication with the departed League, he will be doing Woodrow a robust favor. The Washington branch of the Weejee Board Cable Service has failed in all its efforts to do that little thing. Sir Oliver might also bring along his dancing table and assist the present Grand Jury in deciphering the mysterious thumps being registered by the Overshadowing Crime.

If the distinguished limejuicer brings a new celestial world to light, we move that Bill Bryan be appointed the first Ambassador from America, minus the option of resigning.

CAPT. O'KEEFE WHO SANK U-16 DIES IN MANILA

United States Shipping Board Man Holder Of Congressional Medal Of Honor

Manila, March 25.—Captain William O'Keefe, United States Shipping Board official, remembered as the master of the steamer Violet at the time that vessel rammed and sank the German submarine U-16 off the coast of Ireland in June, 1917, died suddenly in Manila yesterday afternoon.

Captain O'Keefe was one of the best known of the sailors of the old school, having spent 42 years at sea, all of this time in sailing vessels. He arrived in Manila the latter part of January in charge of the shipping board cadets on the bark Montauk, and at the time of his death was awaiting transportation to the United States to report to the shipping board officials for further assignment. Since the organisation of the shipping board Captain O'Keefe had been in command of sailing vessels owned by the board, having been recognised as especially qualified as an instructor in deep water sailing to the future officers of the United States merchant marine.

Some of the finest clipper ships of the American merchant service have been commanded by Captain O'Keefe, notable among these being the clipper ship A. J. Rhodes, on which he spent seven years. He was popular among the older officers of the service and has held a number of appointments as marine commissioner.

A Congressional medal of honor was granted Captain O'Keefe for his action in sinking the submarine U-16, the steamer Violet which he commanded having carried a number of passengers as well as a cargo of munitions. His presence of mind in ramming the under sea boat was specially commented upon by navy officials.

Grey's Successor As British Envoy To United States

Sir Auckland Geddes.

Sir Auckland Geddes has succeeded Lord Grey as British Ambassador to the United States. Sir Auckland Geddes has been Minister of National Service in the Lloyd George Cabinet since 1917. During the recent railway strike he organised the voluntary transport and supply system which saved London from partial starvation. Geddes is only forty-one years old. His wife was Isabelle Gamble, daughter of W. A. Ross, of New York. He saw service in the World War.

Chesterton Has A Warning For U. S. Dry Agents

London, Feb. 15.—Gilbert K. Chesterton's paper, The New Witness, commenting on the reported activities of American prohibition agents in England, says:

"A great deal of bosh has been written before and during the war as to the tightening of the bonds of brotherly affection between us and the United States.

"The war to a certain extent did ameliorate some of the traditional hostility of the average American, but in its place there has grown up this pestiferous longing to interfere with our national customs and suppress our individual liberty. It is difficult to imagine anything more likely to cause permanent estrangement between the masses of people in this country and America than this crusade of Yankee Chadbands.

Navy And Shanghai Play Football Today

The line-up of the Shanghai eleven includes A. McLean, P. Isherwood, and J. Quayle, E. Mears, J. Robertson, and C. H. Davis; A. J. Clark, G. F. Forshaw, A. Solonis, W. Ogden and T. W. R. Wilson.

The Navy team is composed of Bond; Goss and Humphreys; Toms Trace and Macgilles; Henderson, Reynolds, Brown, Wells and Bryant.

CASTORIA
for Infants and Children.
Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have paregoric or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and a few drops too many will produce the sleep from which there is no waking. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labeling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which is poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given your physician know of what to your children unless you or it is composed. Castoria does not contain narcotics.

The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher guarantees genuine Castoria

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"I have frequently prescribed Castoria for common ailments of children with good results."
W. A. CHANDALL, M. D.,
Buffalo, N. Y.

"I find your Castoria is very beneficial in the treatment of children's ailments."
F. DAVIS, M. D.,
Chicago, Ill.

"As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine and, aside from my own family experience, I have, in my years of practice found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."
WM. J. MCCHANN, M. D.,
Omaha, Neb.

"I object to what are called patent medicines, where the maker alone knows what stuff is put in them, but I know the formula of your Castoria and advise its use in proper cases. I judge it to be a very useful, as well as harmless family medicine."
N. B. STEER, M. D.,

GERMANY HAS NO BIG ARMY

General Sir F. Maurice Says The Nation Is Trying To Comply With Treaty Terms

By Maj. Gen. SIR F. MAURICE
(Former Director of Operations of the British Army)

London, February 21.—As the fiction of Germany's secret is still being kept up in certain quarters, it is well that we should remind ourselves of what Germany has now pledged herself to do in the reduction of armaments by ratifying the Peace Treaty.

Winston Churchill, Secretary for War in the British Ministry, who refused to support the statement that Germany could be made to pay, is also the first British Minister to have the courage to tell the truth about the German demobilisation, and to say that Germany has made "a fairly honest effort to comply with the demands of the Allies."

The German demobilisation was taking all the circumstances into consideration, carried out with remarkable efficiency. In December, 1918, Germany had more than 6,000,000 men mobilised; in August, 1919, the new defense force which takes the place of the old regular army, numbered 500,000, and at the end of December, according to the best estimates which I have been able to obtain, is numbered 350,000.

POLICE ONLY EQUIPPED

The various police and volunteer forces which have been created under the Ministry of the Interior for the maintenance of public order, and have been the cause of all the alarm, number about 650,000; but of these only the Public Safety police, numbering 50,000, are armed and equipped.

The creation of these forces is not contrary to the terms of the armistice and, therefore, in forming them Germany has not been guilty of any breach of faith.

Now what further reductions has Germany to make, now that the treaty comes into force?

It has been repeatedly stated that the total strength of the German army has to be reduced to 100,000 men by March 31. This is not the case, and the actual terms of the treaty cannot be too widely known if we are to avoid another of those unjustifiable cries of alarm.

Article 160 of the treaty says that "by a date which must not be later than March 31, 1920, the German army must not comprise more than seven divisions of infantry and three of cavalry," the strength of a division of infantry being fixed by Clause 180 at 11,240 officers and men, and that of a cavalry division at 5,520. Article 160 goes on to say that after March 31 the total number of effectives must not exceed 100,000 men.

REDUCTION TO BE GRADUAL

All this seems perfectly plain and straightforward; but Article 163 says that the reduction detailed in Article 160 "may be effected gradually," and specifies how this is to be done.

Within three months of ratification the strength of the German army must be reduced to 200,000 and the total number of units must not exceed twice the number of those laid down in Article 160—that is to say, they must not exceed fourteen divisions of infantry and six cavalry divisions.

It is clear from this that when the treaty was completed in June last he framers expected that ratification would follow much more rapidly than has been the case.

It is already less than three months to March 31, and it is obvious that if the German army is to be reduced to 100,000 by then, the gradual process envisaged by Article 162 will be impossible.

What we may anticipate is that within three months of ratification the German army will be brought down to 200,000, and Germany will be allowed a reasonable time for the further reduction to 100,000, that time being fixed by a conference of military experts of the principal Allied Powers, which conference is provided for by Article 163.

COMPLIANCE WELL ON WAY

It is one of the unfortunate results of the delay in ratification that the exact interpretation of these clauses is now open to some doubt, though it is quite possible that as Germany is now well forward with her arrangements for bringing her forces down to the required limit, she may not need any additional time to complete the work.

So much as regards the reduction of the regular army, which has to be enlisted voluntarily and for long service, so as to prevent the formation of an army reserve.

When the Treaty comes into force the number of customs officials forest guards and coast guards must not exceed that which existed in 1913, while the police of all kinds may only be increased above the 1913 standard proportionately to the increase in the population of Germany since that date, while educational establishments, universities, societies of discharged soldiers, shooting or touring clubs, and generally speaking, associations of every description, are forbidden to occupy themselves with military matters.

This will affect Noske's police, volunteer and reserve formations, which under the terms of the Treaty will either have to disappear altogether or be reduced in numbers. The Supreme War Council is at the present time considering how these formations are to be dealt with.

OTHER TREATY CONDITIONS

The other chief military and naval conditions of the Treaty provide for the limitation of the guns and munitions to be retained by Germany and the surrender of the surplus within two months of ratification; the suppression of war factories and arsenals to a specified number within three months; the surrender of eight battleships, eight light cruisers, forty-two selected destroyers and fifty torpedo boats within two months; the surrender of all German submarines, submarine salvage vessels and docks within one month, the demolition of all German surface warships under construction, to begin from the date of ratification.

The latest in the activities of those who are toiling to re-erect the German military bogey taking the form of assertions that Germany is going ahead of the allies in the development of aircraft.

The air clauses of the treaty are therefore particularly interesting at the moment. They prohibit any military or naval air force in Germany, they require the demobilisation of all military and naval air personnel within two months of ratification, the surrender of all military and naval aircraft, including parts, engines and material of all kinds within three months; and, finally, the manufacture and importation of aircraft, parts of aircraft, engines or parts of engines is forbidden for six months from ratification.

How in these circumstances is Germany to get a start of the allies in aviation? She has not now, and is not likely to have for a long time to come, the raw material to enable her to replace those which she will have to surrender.

Commissions of allied officers have been for some time past in Germany cataloguing the material to be surrendered and they are ready to see that the amounts to be retained by Germany are not exceeded.

What more do the alarmists require, since it is quite clear that Germany cannot resist the enforcement of these terms and knows she cannot resist?

Batu Anam Estates Meeting

At the seventh annual general meeting of the Batu Anam (Johore) Rubber Estates, Ltd., held yesterday afternoon at the offices of the general managers, Messrs. R. N. Truman and Co., a dividend of five candareens per share was declared.

Mr. G. Grayrigge, who occupied the chair, was supported by Messrs. E. S. Kadoorie, E. A. Measor and R. N. Truman, directors, and Mr. R. N. Swann representing the general managers.

The number of shares represented at the meeting was 80,996.

The notice of the meeting and the auditors report having been read by the secretary, Mr. Grayrigge said:

"The report which has been in your hands for some days I will with your permission take as read.

"The planted area of the Estates is now 1,016 acres of which 866 acres are producing, and 150 acres non-producing. A further 4 acres are ready for planting, and if the labor position is assured another 50 to 60 acres will be planted this year.

"You will notice we have over 1,300 acres of reserve land most of which is virgin jungle and which we intend to gradually develop. The statistical figures given in the report will I fell sure be found satisfactory. The amount of rubber harvested was 291,760 lbs. against an estimate of 300,000 lbs. The deficit was due to the abnormal dryness of the weather between the middle of April and the middle of December.

"The estimated crop for 1920 is 340,000 lbs. The cost of production shows a very satisfactory reduction, viz., 10.21 compared with 13.12 last year. This reduction has been obtained in spite of the increased cost of most Estate supplies, and the loss on rice and food production, viz., $7,234.51. From the latest reports it is feared the loss under the latter headings will be even greater this year. The weeding costs show a satisfactory reduction, and the Estate is now getting into a good position with regard to weeding and cultivation. Thinning out has been carried out to the extent of removing 11,903 trees. Further thinning out will be continued this year.

Diseases and pests have given little trouble, and the Rubber Growers' Association mycologist reported last October, little evidence of disease.

"Most of the dead timber has been removed which is a great safeguard against further infection. The coolies health in general has been excellent throughout the year, the result of which is reflected in the reduced expenditure under the heading of medical and hospital. The labor position has been more satisfactory. The manager is at present in India investigating the prospects of recruiting more Tamils, and it is hoped he will be successful in his efforts, as it is most desirable to have an entirely Tamil labor force.

"Owing to high prices and adverse exchange there is a good deal of unrest among the labor in the F.M.S.

"The price realised for the 1919 output was 1/9.53 compared with 1/3.99 last year. Forty-eight tons of smoked sheet have been sold for 1920 at an average price of 97½ cents ex warehouse Singapore. During the year it was found necessary to replace several old coolie lines. Three were completed and six are under construction. Hard timber from the reserve jungle is being used for building purposes. A new assistants' bungalow is in course of erection, and owing to the increased output, an extension is necessary to the factory. Mr. Clark, the manager, is well satisfied with his new assistants, and I should like to here record the Board's appreciation of work of the Estate staff, the agents, and our general managers.

Amount received for every S. $100	1917 = 55
Amount received for every S. $100	1918 = 45

No questions were asked and the following resolutions were unanimously passed:

Seremban Rubber Estate Meeting

The fifth annual general meeting of the Shanghai Seremban Rubber Estates, Ltd., was held at the head office of the company at 71 Szechuen Road, yesterday. There were 141,900 shares represented at the meeting. Mr. R. S. Ivy was in the chair and was supported by Messrs. M. Speelman and J. H. Osborne and the Rev. Pere Sallou.

Addressing the meeting, the chairman said:

"Before commencing the business of the meeting I wish to refer to the great loss the Board has sustained through the death of our late chairman, Mr. C. W. Wrightson, who always had the welfare of the Company at heart.

"The report of the directors and statement of accounts have been in your hands for the regular period and I will with your permission take them as read.

"With regard to the report it is so fully detailed that it leaves me little to comment upon. During the year the producing area was increased by 93 acres, 12,000 new trees having been taken into the tapping round, and I may mention that a further 2,780 trees were added during January of this year, and more will be coming into tapping later on in the year.

"The original estimated output for the year under review was 140,000 lbs., but this was revised in August to 150,000 lbs., the actual output however exceeded this latter estimate by 12,247 lbs. although quite 13 to 14,000 lbs. was lost through rain during the tapping hours.

"The total f.o.b. cost compares favorably with preceding years, taking into-consideration that the proportion of sundry losses and loss on rice account amounts to ¾d. per lb. You are undoubtedly aware that there has been and is a scarcity of foodstuff in the Straits Settlements.

FOOD FOR LABORERS

"Instead of paying increased wages to the labor force the majority of rubber companies are purchasing rice and supplying it to the laborers below cost. The total loss for the year on this transaction was Straits $1,176.78. We have recently been advised that the controlled price has been raised nearly 30 percent so we are faced with a still heavier outlay during the current year.

"Sundry losses were increased by the result of a burglary committed on the night of September 12, the sum of $2,888 having been stolen from the estate by the manager's Chinese servants. Although the police traced the culprits to Malacca and a substantial reward was offered for their capture they have up to the present managed to elude arrest.

"The circumstances were such that the manager could not be held responsible for the loss and the amount had to be written off, needless to state precautions have been taken against a repetition of such an occurrence.

"The opening of the new areas also added to the cost. Depreciation, exchange and head office charges were slightly more than that of 1918 on account of the average rate of exchange at which these items have been converted into sterling being higher.

"The estimated cost of production for the current year on an estimated output of 180,000 lbs. is 12.65d. pence per lb.

NO DIVIDEND DECLARED

Turning to the accounts you will note the result of the year's working shows a net profit of Tls. 8,933.02 which together with the sum of Tls. 11,931.83 carried forward from last year amounts to Tls. 20,864.85 which your directors recommend should be dealt with as follows:

	Tls.
To write off Development Account	4,992.21
To write off Buildings .	6,473.01
To write off Factory and Stores	910.12
To write off Furniture .	442.95
To write off Motor Car .	49.87
To carry forward to next year's account	7,996.69
	Tls. 20,864.85

and I shall propose a resolution to this effect later.

"The very unfavorable exchange ruling the past year has greatly affected the returns. The average rate of exchange for the year at which conversion of Straits currency into Taels was made was 41.50, whilst the closing rate for rubber in stock, etc., was 30, against 49 and 44¾ for 1918 and 60 and 54 for the preceeding year.

"Against the overdraft of Tls. 5,723.92 with the bank here we have at present on fixed deposit in Singapore the sum of $24,000 and your directors are not having it remitted to Shanghai until the opportunity of a more favorable exchange presents itself.

"Mr. D. Gilchrist continues to manage the estate and he spares no pains in the interests of the Company, under his charge the estate has made good progress and reflects great credit upon his care and supervision.

"In compliance with the China (Companies) Amendment Order in Council, 1919, and as notified through the local press the secretaryship of the Company was transferred on March 1 to Messrs. J. A. Wattie and Co., Ltd.

RESOLUTIONS PASSED

The following resolutions were passed:

That the directors' report and statement of accounts for the year ended December 31, 1919, as presented and the disposal of the balance at credit of profit and loss account as recommended be passed and adopted. Proposed by Mr. Robert S. Ivy. Seconded by Mr. J. H. Osborne.

That the Rev. Pere F. Sallou be re-elected a director of the Company. Proposed by Mr. M. Speelman. Seconded by Mr. C. J. Stewart.

That Messrs. G. H. and N. Thomson be re-elected auditors of the Company for the ensuing year, at a fee of Tls. 150.00 for auditing the books of the Company at Shanghai. Proposed by Mr. Hugo Reiss. Seconded by Mr. Speelman.

SHANGHAI GAS CO.

The Directors of the Shanghai Gas Co. Ltd. have decided to recommend payment of a dividend for 1919 of Tls. 2.00 per share, being at the rate of 4 percent on the paid up capital, and that Tls. 142,455.46 be written off for depreciation of buildings, plant and Stocks of fittings and Tls. 18,945.58 carried forward to next account.

France's Position

THE Note which M. Millerand sent to Germany, justifying the French seizure of additional German cities, is admirable from every standpoint, and beside it the German complaints fall rather flat. The Germans had violated the terms of the Treaty of Peace and they had broken their word. The situation in the Ruhr district was not such as to warrant the sending in of German troops. And in sending these troops into the Ruhr the German Government had yielded to the demand of the German Military Party, which weakness was calculated to have a bad effect upon the workers and therefore to produce a new danger.

Again, this German move was a cause of anxiety to France because of the fact that the disarmament of Germany has not been carried out. "France therefore decided that she must consider Germany's attitude as hostile, and having informed and consulted her Allies, she took steps to guarantee her security."

There has latterly appeared a disposition in some quarters to consider that France has been pressing Germany too hard and holding her too tight and fast; that France has failed to appreciate the difficulties which the German government was encountering. There has been too much of this and not enough of France's side.

France distrusts Germany as she has every right to do and she is determined not to be caught napping. For forty odd years the mailed fist of Germany threatened France's very existence. She has now destroyed that menace and she intends that it shall stay destroyed. The cost to her of the great war was far heavier than it was to Germany and she is out to recover what is possible. One has only to think of what Mr. Lamont so strikingly said the other day—"57 percent of the French officers and men under 31 years of age were killed"—in order to know how France feels. She has shown her willingness to let Germany live, but she probably would not grieve if Germany perished altogether.

France has suffered so terribly that even today her beaten enemy has a better chance for early recovery than she, the victor, has; this probably is so even if the full terms of the Treaty of Peace are carried out. The Allies already have made some concessions to Germany and, as we have pointed out, there has been some evidence in Allied countries of an inclination to criticise France for opposing these concessions. France, from her standpoint and from her knowledge of Germany, is justified in opposing concessions and it is our opinion that the Allies cannot afford further to grant them. And France, now that Germany, on one pretext or another, is trying to ride rough shod over the Treaty which she herself signed, is justified in taking prompt action, and inasmuch as she is so justified she is entitled to the full support of her Allies and of America

Head Of $2,500,000 Firm Tells Why He Is Making 800 Employes His Partners

Every One To Receive In Cash Portion Of Great Knitting Mill Profit And Part In Shares Of Concern—Division To Be Made On Worker's Earnings For Whole Year

By CHARLES WINSHIP

Head of the firm of Winship, Boit and Co., proprietors of the Harvard Knitting Mills at Wakefield, Mass., who have made their 800 employes partners in the concern, which is valued at $2,500,000.

We have gone into business with our employes. For several years the firm has been considering some means of presenting its workers with a part of the profits which they have helped to create. We have tried out the bonus system with fairly good results, but for some time we have felt the need of a plan whereby our employes should become directly interested in our business. We think that now we have found the means by which this may be done successfully, and we intend to give the experiment a fair trial.

We have announced to the workers of Winship, Boit and Co., that hereafter every man and woman may be considered an employe-partner of the firm.

Every one will receive in cash a portion of the company's profit, and all will gain as time goes on an increasingly large interest in the ownership of the company. If these interests which our workers acquire yearly should increase beyond those of the proprietors, the business itself will become the property of the employes.

Manufacturers, doubtless, will hail this announcement as an indication of madness. It seems at first glance revolutionary. Perhaps it is in a way, but after months of study we have come to the conclusion that it is a revolution in the right direction. It is a revolution which in time, we believe, will stimulate other manufacturers along the same lines.

ALL TO SHARE IN PROFITS

Our plan in brief is this: All employes who have been continuously in the employ of the firm for a year or more prior to January 1, 1920, will receive certificates equal to 20 percent of their 1919 earnings. All who have been employed for more than a year will receive an additional amount of one percent for every year of service, and will receive a certificate therefore, such certificate to date from January 1, 1920.

The net profits of our firm each year will be divided equally. One half of these profits will be placed to the credit of the proprietors. The other half will be placed to the credit of the "employe-partners," as we shall call them. The first participation in the profits will come when the profits for 1920 have been ascertained.

Of the half thus turned over to the workers, one half will be paid to each man and woman in cash according to his or her earnings for that year. The remaining half of the employes' share will remain in the business to the credit of the employe-partners as a part of the total working capital of the industry. Certificates will be issued and interest paid thereon at the rate of six percent annually.

In other words, we will give our employes half of our profits, but we will insist that they put one-half of this sum into the business. The money is theirs, working for them and paying an interest rate higher than that given by the average savings bank. In short, the employes receive in cash a quarter of the net earnings of the company; another quarter of the profits is received in the form of certificates; and finally, interest is paid at a high percentage on the money represented by these certificates.

MUST BEAR SHARE OF LOSS

Of course, there are two sides to every question. If an employe is to share in the profits of his employer, it is only fair that he should bear his just proportion of the losses, should there be any. To this end it is provided that any losses shall be borne equally by the proprietors and the employe partners, the employes' payment being made from the capital represented by their accumulated interests in the company. Naturally, in such a year there would be no cash distribution, although the interest due on the certificates would be paid.

Should the employes fail to have enough accumulated capital to their credit to pay their half of the loss, the proprietors will advance the money in the form of a loan which will be charged against the employes' account. Deductions from the employes' fund in the event of losses will be made in proportion to the amount represented by each employe's certificates.

This provision in the agreement which we have signed with our employes is, however, in the nature of a precaution only, for with every man and woman a shareholder in the firm, we are confident that each one will make it his or her special task to see to it that the company ends the year with the balance on the right side of the book.

There are further provisions which the firm has embodied in the agreement simply for its own protection. In the first place, a worker coming to us does not join immediately the ranks of the employe-partners. Instead, he receives at the end of his first year a certificate equivalent to 20 percent of his earnings. After the second year of his employment he will become a profit-sharer.

PURPOSE OF PROVISION

The purpose of this provision is plain. Without it, it is possible that workmen would come to us with no intention of remaining longer than just time enough to collect the first year's cash profit, cash in their certificates, and leave us. This would manifestly be unfair, not only to the company, but to the employe-partners who have been with us for years.

Along the same line is the provision that a worker on leaving the employ of the firm voluntarily cannot transfer into cash his certificate interests in the company until after the expiration of one year. This is only another precaution, for although our factory has never experienced trouble of any kind, it is conceivable that a difficulty might occur. The withdrawal of the certificate holdings might call for the sudden outlay of the entire body of workers of an enormous sum of money, which expenditure might easily wreck the firm. Therefore, we include in our agreement the provision that one year must ensue before the certificate may be cashed in.

On the other hand, should an employe be discharged his interests in the certificate holdings of the employe-partners will be cashed immediately and his share in the cash profit will be available at the end of the year, when the net profit is reckoned and the division among the employe-partners is made.

AFTER AGE OF SIXTY

All employes who have been in the employ of the company for five years or longer and who have arrived at the age of 60 years will have the right to withdraw each year 50 percent of the amount credited upon their certificates, such withdrawal to be made on the first day of January of each year.

When any worker who has received these certificates for five or more years or who has been in the employ of the company for five years or longer retires from such employ he will have his certificate redeemed at full value in one year after he gives notice of such retirement, with interest at 6 percent per year, value to be determined as of date of payment.

An employe leaving the company before the completion of five years' service will allow the amount for which he holds certificates to remain in the business until the expiration of five years from the date of his first employment with the company, and will receive interest thereon at the rate of 6 percent per year.

In case of the death of a worker his legal representatives will receive in cash at once the full value of the worker's interests in the company.

A committee of five to be appointed by a majority of the employes will confer with the proprietors on questions of working conditions and matters pertaining to the financial end of the profit-sharing agreement. The majority vote of the employes, also, will allow of an examination of the company's books, the expense to be paid from the employe-partners' account in the business. Nothing in the agreement, however, will interfere in any way with the existing individual liberty of the employes to take up personal questions with the proprietors.

If in two years the agreement is found to have not fulfilled its purpose it may be abrogated by the firm, and in that case certificates will be redeemed in full. Every employe who wishes to accept the firm's offer signs a contract, and in turn receives one from the firm.

Should the day come when the interests of the employe-partners exceed the interests of the proprietors, a corporation will be formed under the laws of Massachusetts either on application of the proprietors or employe-partners. To this corporation all the interests of the employe-partners and all the real and personal property of the proprietors in the business will be transferred. Stock in the corporation will be given a par value of $100, and both proprietors and employes will receive such stock in payment for their individual interests. Cash will be paid by the company for the interests of any employe when such interests are less than $100.

Our position in this matter doubtless differs somewhat from that of the average manufacturer. We, the firm and the employes, have grown up together in the business, and know and trust each other. Our workers are mostly American. We have not the foreign element which in another plant might well prevent the harmonious working-out of such a plan as ours, because of the ignorance and suspicion of American institutions on the part of foreign workers.

EMPLOYES DEAL DIRECTLY

We have no unions in the factory, not that we have ever opposed them, but because the employes never wished to form any. They have always dealt directly with the firm, bringing their individual grievances to us, and knowing that they would receive sympathetic attention. Miss Boit, and myself have always spent a great deal of time in the workrooms with the employes, ever ready to assist and advise them, and we have never had any trouble with our workers.

To furnish statistics for which we have been asked we would state that some time ago we invsetigated the literacy of our workers. We found that of 800 workers every single one could read and write English. Three years ago—long before the State law reducing working hours was passed—we reduced our working hours from 54 to 51½ hours weekly, and then to 48 hours weekly. We had to hire a few more workers to make up for the shorter hours, but increased efficiency compensated for the loss to some extent.

At the present time our production is showing a decided slump, the same slump which hit practically every business in the country when the war ended.

We find that since we adopted the forty-eight-hour schedule about 70 percent of our help are doing less work per hour today than they did under the fifty-four-hour schedule. Production seems to be falling off simply because a majority of the workers are not taking sufficient interest in their work. The people all over the world are talking instead of working.

REASONS FOR SHARING

We had several reasons for sharing our profits with the employes.

First—It seemed to us that if we were to accumulate money it would be better to share it with the people who helped to make it than to give too exclusively for educational, philanthropic or other worthy objects, however important such objects might be.

Second—We believed that our workers would have a greater interest in the business.

Third—We felt confident that better quality goods would be turned out.

Fourth—We thought that the employes would work together and cooperate to a greater degree, knowing that the profits of each one depended to a large extent upon the amount of work which he and his co-workers produced.

Fifth—It seemed to us that a man in this employe-partnership would say to himself. "I am a part of this company. It is to my advantage to see that everything is done to protect the interests of the company, to further its aims and to make it a success in every way."

We are sure that our employes know of our interest in them and believe that we are undertaking this experiment solely for their welfare; we also believe it would work to our mutual advantage. So far as we know, this form of profit sharing is original with us, and it is certainly entirely voluntary on our part. Furthermore, our employes were not restless; in fact, we believe that they have been wholly satisfied with the increases in wages that have been given in the past three years. We believe that as the full significance of its effect is realised, our now employe-partners will understand that the benefits of this plan, both to them and to us, are practically without limit.

"PUT YOUR OWN HOUSE IN ORDER"

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS.

Dear Sir:—Now that the Chinese of Shanghai are demanding representation on the Council, "No Taxation without Representation," etc., won't you please send one of your representatives into the interior, especially Honan, and find out how much representation they get from their own people? Also, have your representative purchase a first-class ticket for a trip on the Peking-Hankow Railway, and see how much chance he has of getting a seat, all of which are occupied by servants and soldiers of officials, none of whom have tickets. Not alone that, but the impertinence of the "student" employes of that line who, when their attention is called to the fact that you have a first class ticket, simply reply, "Pu Yao Chin."

Recently a lady traveling on this purely Chinese-managed railway, asked one of the "dining car" employes to serve her tiffin in her compartment, as the "dining car" was full of dirty soldiers, whereupon that young man replied "Not got time—Suppose want tiffin here cost $15.00," etc., etc.

On March 5, Sinyangchow was looted by Wang Yin-chuang's troops, and as usual a lot of innocent people lost their lives.

Won't it be better for those young patriots of China first to put their own house in order, instead of trying to impose their will upon the only peaceful places in China; i.e., foreign concessions?

Yours truly,

E. L.

Chengchow, Honan,

Is America Friendly To England?

Only an equivocal answer can be given to this question, according to Mr. A. G. Gardiner, who for years was editor of the London Daily News and lately returned from a tour of observation in the United States. The answer he gives is that the "best mind" of America is overwhelmingly friendly to England, but the "popular mind" has yet to be won. And he warns his compatriots that "the winning or the losing of it is in our hands." The worst way to promote friendship between England and America is to shut one's eyes to facts, he goes on to say, for the friendship of America "can not be taken for granted any more than the friendship of members of one family can be taken for granted." Cousins may hate each other very heartily, and the first fact to recognise is that there are "both fierce antipathies and cold indifferences as well as strong affections for this country in America." The main current of the American nation Mr. Gardiner believes to be "profoundly pro-English," and, writing in The Daily News, he explains:

"By the main current I do not mean the majority. I mean the most influential thought, the most educated opinion, the most indigenous culture. You will find among certain elements of American life a tenderness of affection for this country as surprising as it is moving. And this not only in a city that retains so much of the English atmosphere as Boston does, but in remote places. Off the beaten track, as in Kentucky, you may find yourself in a social atmosphere more reminiscent of England than England itself. It is only there that I have seemed to see Jane Austen's England in the flesh. It is not a social cult or an affection. It is a frame of mind. And among the intellectuals the enthusiasm for England is, I should say, overwhelmingly predominant. I saw much of the representative men of the universities, at Harvard, Chicago, and elsewhere, and better and wiser friends of England I do not wish to see—friends who know our faults as well as our virtues, and feel our mistakes as acutely as if they were their own.

"This current is our great asset in America. It rests with us not only to keep it, but to extend it and to make it dominant over American popular sentiment. That sentiment is neither pro-English nor anti-English. It is indifferent for the most part, shot through with threads of friendship here and hostility there. How could it be otherwise? The popular conception here of America as a sort of member of our family who has broken away from us is a fatal misunderstanding of the fact."

This was true a century ago, and partly true half a century ago, but it is not true today, we are reminded. Now the United States is "a great foreign country" infinitely vaster, more populous, more rich than England, with an independent life, a civilisation widely different, a "confusion of races and tongues welded into a rough whole." Mr. Gardiner continues:

"When a war-announcement was made in Chicago, I am told, it was placarded in forty-seven languages and dialects. New York has a larger Italian population than Rome, and a larger aggregation of Jews than any city. It is a great Polish city, a great German city, a great Russian city. There are more negroes in it than in any city on earth, its only rival being Chicago. In motoring from Boston to Cape Cod I stayed in Plymouth, and found the very Mekka of English Puritanism a busy colony of Polish artisans. The textile-industries of Massachusetts and Rhode Island are run by Italian, Polish, and French-Canadian labor. And Buffalo, Detroit, Toledo, Cleveland, Chicago, and the other cities that have sprung up like magic by the highway of the Great Lakes to the West are as diverse in their population as the Eastern cities, and farther removed from the original English influence that lies, nevertheless, at the core of American institutions and thought. And farther west the popular aloofness from that original source is almost complete.

"In the midst of this seething torrent of life there run certain well-defined currents that are definitely and positively hostile to England. The legacy of that stupid monarch George III. still remains, not in intelligent circles, but in unintelligent circles, and the teaching of history in the past did nothing to remove it in either country. When I was being shown over the White House, at Washington, I was told how a British Ambassador, now dead, on visiting the home of the Presidents asked why the wood of the structure, obviously beautiful, had been defaced by white paint. He was told that about a hundred years ago there had been an unfortunate fire there, and the charred timbers had to be painted—hence the White House. In his innocence he pressed for details, and he learned to his discomfiture that the 'unfortunate fire' was caused by a raid of British sailors in the War of 1812-14."

Of this fact that deceased British Ambassador had been ignorant, just as the present English informant confesses that he was ignorant. But the American schoolboy of the past was, reasonably enough, not allowed to be, and Mr. Gardiner points out that—

"The fact that we had twice waged war on American soil was at the root of his patriotic teaching, and it takes a long time to get a reminiscence like that out of the blood of a race. It is being got out now, but the dregs of the old mischief are still there.

"They are re-enforced by more active and living factors. We have rarely taken the trouble to send to America in official capacities men who understand and sympathise with the American idea or appreciate American institutions. During the war many of the official visitors to the country did us no good service. The tour of the gentleman whom Mr. Lloyd George has been pleased to make Lord Chancellor is still a public memory. America has sent its most famous citizens to represent it at the Court of St. James's. With the exception of Lord Bryce, we have usually sent to Washington men trained in the evil spirit of European diplomacy, ignorant of the American spirit and often contemptuous of that spirit if they were not ignorant. The fresh, healthy understanding spirit which Lord Grey and Sir William Tyrrell have breathed into the official atmosphere during recent months must be maintained. We must have in Washington big men who understand America, love it, and sympathise with its culture and ideas."

Sheer aversion is expressed for anything like "official propaganda," which Mr. Gardiner describes as "playing the enemy's game." What is wanted, he believes, is the fullest exchange of the best and most liberal minds, intercourse between the universities, between the learned professions, the press, and the schools. Above all, he cautions his countrymen against "patronage," and remarks that "it is difficult for a certain type of Englishman not to display his social superiorities outside his country." Anywhere they are unpleasant enough, but in America they "do infinite mischief." The typical American is portrayed as the "most hospitable and friendly of men. He has plenty of faults, but he is neither a snob nor a flunky." From these taints no air is so free as that of the United States; but, after all, they are simply matters of conduct and temper. More concrete and more formidable obstacles confront American friendship with England:

"The most formidable of all is the Irish question. Until that question is satisfactorily out of the way there can be no secure friendship between the two countries. The influence of the Irish upon American politics is much greater than their numbers would suggest. Those numbers are great—not less than a tenth of the population, probably much more. But they are a solid phalanx in American life."

How important a factor in world affairs is friendship between the two great English-speaking peoples may be gathered from Mr. Gardiner's contention that—

"If the key to the puzzle of this distracted world can be said to rest in any single fact, most people would agree that it is to be found in the relations of the British Commonwealth and the American Commonwealth. Between them they control a third of the surface of the globe, not far short of half its natural resources, much more than half its realised wealth, not less than two-thirds of its industrial power and, perhaps most important of all, a preponderance of naval power that makes them together unchallenged and unchallengeable on the paths of the sea. Their populations are not equivalent to the vastness of their territorial and economic dominion, but in the circumstances of today they represent the most efficient, the most prosperous, and the most energetic peoples of the earth.

"Add to all this that they speak a common tongue, have similar habits of thought, modes of law, customs of trade, forms of religion, intellectual outlooks, and spiritual tendencies, and it will be apparent that together they are easily the dominant half of humanity. It was not so before the war. That event has turned the scale decidedly in favor of the English-speaking peoples."

There is only one other possible combination which "could come within shouting distance of it," we are told, and that would be the "combination of Germany, Russia, and Japan." Yet it is pointed out that in such a combination there would be "a union of hostilities of speech, temperament, and race." So it is practicable only after the lapse of years, while an English-speaking understanding is "within our grasp today."

Some Method

"Don't you think, dear," began Mr. Comfy, "that our next-door neighbors, the Scrubbs, are putting on a great deal too much style, considering the fact that they never know from day to day where the next meal is coming from?"

"Well," replied Mrs. Comfy, "you see, the more style they put on the more likely they are to be invited out to dinner."

"One leads where many follow."

Hall's Distemper has led the way to a new era in house decoration—the era of brighter, cleaner and healthier homes.

It is the most durable of all decorations, lasting for years with freshness unimpaired, whereas wall-papers deteriorate from the first day by fading and accumulating dust and dirt.

Hall's Distemper is a thorough disinfectant, and is applied directly upon the wall, forming a hard surface, from which dust and dirt may be "spring-cleaned" by lightly sponging with warm water.

Legal Tangles Of Druids Make Complications In Opera :-: By Ring W. Lardner

To The Editor:

As you probably read in the papers they's been a lot of flu around here as well as elsewheres but the only bacillicicici witch has bit me so iar is the grand opera germ that costs just as much but maybe don't kill as many people though at lease 1 and sometimes 2 or 3 of the performers dies in the last act.

Well I told my friends about seeing Geraldine in poor Butterfly down to the opera house in N. Y. city so the other day the Mrs. made the remark that the Chicago opera singers was at the Lexington theater so on acct. of us being from old Chi you might say why we figured it wasn't no more than fair to go there 1 night so I looked in the paper and seen where Rosie Raisa was going to play Norma and she is the best sporano singer I ever heard outside of maybe Nora Bayes so I said leave us go and hear her.

So 1 day I couldn't help from being in N. Y. city so I went up to the Lexington theater and hailed out a roll of bills that would choke a gnat.

"Well" says the bird in the box office "it certainly seems good to see a guy from old Chi. How are you?"

I wonder if you could fix me up for next Tuesday night for Rosie in Norma" I said sticking my roll back in my thimble.

"You bet I can" said the bird "and if it wasn't going to be a sell out I wouldn't take your money."

I just set this down to show how I stand with birds from old Chi. He took my money, but he wouldn't if he could help it.

Well Tuesday night finely come and sure enough it was a sell out and besides every seat being full they was 2 or 3 100 persons parked on their dogs and you had to houdini your way to your seat. Well 1 of the N. Y. music critics said the next A. M. that it was the 1st time Norma had been sang for 140 yrs. except in Chicago witch of coarse don't count and the last time it was really sang was by Lilli Lemon in N. Y. city the yr. Lord Cornwallis run for president so any way it's a old story and I guess I may as well tell you what it's about.

Well it seems that in the old days when Gallia was omnes divisa in partes tres they was a Elks lodge over there witch they called the druids and the minute you joined them you was exempt from military service and you didn't half to pay no taxes and I guess they didn't have no trouble increasing their memberships. The only draw backs was that you had to worship a oak tree and live on acorns and you couldn't have no children witch is why pretty near everybody in the show was old geezers with beards.

Well in this show it starts out that the wops have knocked the Galls for a touchdown and gool and they's a bird name Pollio from Roma who has been placed in charge of the drids it seems like him and Norma who is arch queen of the druids has been married or something and any way they have got 2 children 1 of them 7 yrs. old and the other 9 and on acct. of it being vs. the druids laws to have children, Rosie has kept hers a secret and I will half to slip it to her for doing, as personly I know something about children, and will give anybody $900.00 that can keep them a secret 9 minutes to say nothing about 9 yrs.

But I seem to of strayed off the plot. It seems that this wop Pollio finely gets stuck on another gal Myrna Sharlow and the modestly owns the same up to Rosit so Rosie cusses her but Myrna says she won't have nothing more to do with the bird so the show goes on.

Well I will half to give you some more of the by laws of the druids before I can finish this story. (Laughter and cheers.) Well it seems like the druids is like all other grand opera stars and when they want to express deep emotion they hit themself with the flat of their hand and they usually pick out a place where it won't hurt namely the top of the head. But that has nothing to do with this story.

Well in atto duo when Rosie found out that Pollio was now stuck on Myrna for some reason another she decided to kill her children and I have often felt the same way but just couldn't do it when it come to the pinch and neither could she so they was no kids murdered in this opera but it seems that they was another by law of the druids that if you done something wrong like haveing children you had to kill yourself and they always had a fire going so you could step into it and burn up so in the last act Rosie owns up to her old man that she has got a couple kids and her and the father of her children steps into the fire and down comes the asbestos curtain so the guys that have paid $6.60 won't be burnt also and the next idear is to run out and get a taxi for the G. C. depot and try and make the 11:30 train.

"I am afraid I haven't described this opera very good but will say its a tough one to tell about and no wonder it takes 140 yrs. to get ready for it and in regards to the music by Bellini why all as I can say is that he stole 3 of his best tunes from Nearer to Thee and So Long Letty and the Mocking Bird.

Next wk. dear editor I will try an not write no more opera stuff unless some bird gives me a pair of tickets without holding out his hand like they was an aftermath or something.

RING LARDNER.

What Every Woman Knows

That it isn't John Barleycorn who is keeping her husband out evenings now.

That if she takes advantage of Leap Year and proposes to a man she is never going to hear the last of it.

That a bird on the hat is worth three hundred that have not yet been killed.

That a man who knows how to embroider and knit is never going to be a wizard of finance.

That she can keep her husband from kissing the cook by doing her own cooking.

That the card club prize is going to be something that the hostess won at a previous meeting.

That education is a great thing. Chorus girls ride in limousines while school teachers walk to work.

That a woman's watch is great to tack down a stair carpet with or to throw at a cat.

That it is no fun to smoke a cigarette when nobody is looking.

That the woman who occupies the apartment last had perfectly atrocious taste in wall paper.

That if she stepped to the door and called, "Here, kitty-kitty," all the women in the neighborhood would have to come a-running if they were perfectly honest about it.

Pointed Facts

It is estimated that 150,000 lives would be saved annually in America simply from accidents if all our workers could understand English.

The average wage of all American school teachers is $590 a year. In twenty-three States it is under $300.

Education of our illiterates would increase their earning power $2,000,000,000 a year, experts say. We spend less than $900,000,000 on schools and colleges.

Discourses of a Scientist

By EDGAR LUCIEN LARKIN

Since the war, interest in science is increasing. This I know from the increasing number of questions received. Here are samples:

"Please give the principles of the Third Law of Kepler."

"How does Kepler's Third Law compare with Einstein's theory?"

"How are planets ruled by Kepler's laws?"

The third law announced by the great astronomer Kepler in the sixteenth century is:

"The squares of the times of revolution of all the planets round the sun are to each other as are the cubes of their mean distances from it."

Here times and distances are brought into mathematical equations together. Here are two examples in proof of this fundamental law of nature:

The time required for the earth to revolve around the sun is 1. The square of 1 equals 1. The distance of the earth's center from that of the sun is 1. The cube of 1 equals 1. The time required for Saturn to make one revolution is 29.3, which squared, equals 858. The distance of Saturn from the sun is 9.5, which cubed, equals 858. The time of Jupiter's revolution is 11.87, whose square is 141. The distance of Jupiter's center from the sun's center is 5.2, whose cube is 141.

Then the square of Saturn's periodic time is to the square of Jupiter's period as is the cube of Saturn's distance to Jupiter's distance. And by thus squaring and cubing all the times and distances of the planets in the solar system the law is found to be absolutely true. And the same with all of the 26 moons in the system.

But see the importance: Suppose that at any time the skilled celestial photographers using the 60 and 100 inch telescopes on Mount Wilson, in California, should discover on their sensitive negatives a planet far beyond the orbit of Neptune. They could take photographs day after day and month after month, until they could measure its angular velocity per day or month.

Then they could divide 1,296,000 seconds of arc in a circle by the angular velocity, which is in seconds of arc, and find the times of the long revolution. Then its distance from the sun could be found in five minutes by simply squaring the time and extracting the cube root of the square.

Suppose that the time of one circuit should turn out to be 300 years, that of Neptune being 164. Then 300 squared equals 90,000, whose cube root is a little less than 45, the times greater distance from the sun than the distance of the earth, all measurements being referred to those of earth as 1.

As great as is this achievement in finding the distance of a newly discovered planet beyond Neptune would be, or the distance of a newly discovered planet between the sun and the planet Mercury, a far greater would be the finding of the distance between binary suns, that is, where two suns are revolving around their common center of gravitation.

The third Keplerian law is as universal as the law of gravitation, discovered by Newton. The third law has nothing to do with Einstein's theory now going the rounds of the press. Students of psychology are now having the time of their lives striving to analyze the sudden appearance all over the world of Einstein's hypothesis—the outburst came as suddenly as did the fourth dimension theories about twenty years ago. Curved space, poor dimensional space, transcendental curve—these all and more have no relation to the rigid mathematical law of Kepler. The third he discovered by long years of incessant toil.

MARSHALL GIVES HIS PLATFORM

Without Waiting For Wilson's Lead, He Comes Out For 'Old-Time Democracy'

DEFENDS POLICY IN WAR

Ancient Doctrines Are What The Country Needs, He Declares

Washington, Feb. 15.—Vice-President Marshall has written the following letter to E. G. Hoffman, of Fort Wayne, Ind., secretary of the Democratic National Committee:

"Thus far the President, who is the chief of our party, has not deemed it expedient to express his opinion as to what the issues will be. As I am desirous of being a delegate-at-large from the State of Indiana, I wish, in consonance with what I hope has been my entire public career, to state the substance of what I think the Democratic party should stand for.

"I would not want to go under any misapprehension as to my views upon the part of the unfaltering demands of Indiana.

DEFENDS WAR POLICY

"We were in the war from the very moment of its European beginning because it affected our internal affairs. All of the methods and measures adopted for the preservation of the peace of our country and the winning of the war met with my approval and I am ready to defend them.

"The war now is over and the rehabilitation of America, as well as the rest of the world, is taking place. It is not possible to accomplish our rehabilitation other than through the instrumentalities of political parties. How shall the Democratic party propose to rehabilitate the political system of America, if entrusted with power, is the question.

"I have watched in other countries the effects of so-called unbridled democracy, and I have seen its menace in this country, until I am quite convinced that the peace, prosperity and perpetuity of the American Republic must rest finally upon a few ancient and time honored Democratic doctrines.

JEFFERSON HIS MODEL

"No one save God can remove the individual as the unit of good government. Legislative efforts to produce justice and good order in society by listening and acceding to the demands of persons and classes will in the hour of peace produce failure. The only sure foundation for a stable republic must rest upon the Jeffersonian right to life, to liberty and to the pursuit of happiness.

"The Democratic party should stand for this and pledge itself to rebuild the American political structure along this line by clearly dividing its citizens into the law abiding and law-breaking, making its laws rest equally upon all men.

"Permitting the individual citizen who is honest to succeed by honest methods; giving to no citizen legislative advantage; speedily punishing any one who unjustly obtains by crooked and dishonest means, recognising that this is still a Federation of States; demanding that the States discharge the duties of local self-government.

"Resisting the usurpation of the General Government, removing corrupt and biased judges, but standing always for obedience to the decrees of court and constituted authority, insisting that the legislative branch of the Government shall be responsible for the discharge of its duty and serving notice upon it that it cannot sulk behind an alleged interference upon the part of the executive branch.

"Electing an Executive pledged to discharge the countless officials and innumerable agents made necessary by the war and to administer public affairs along economic lines, even to the point of the veto of every bill carrying not only unnecessary and ill-advised appropriations, but appropriations for the benefit of a few citizens rather than for the common good.

"Regulating strictly every public utility and punishing all those seeking to profiteer either personally or through aggregated combinations of men or money, in short, the presentation to the people for their suffrages of a man upon an old-time Democratic platform.

"If a faith of this kind appeals to the Democrats of Indiana, I desire to go as a Delegate at Large to the convention at San Francisco to advocate this kind of platform and to ascertain whether everything that made the Republic great was right or wrong."
